

2010 Global Action Plan¹ and technical cooperation priorities

The Global Action Plan agreed in 2006 remains the framework guiding ILO activities through to 2016. Within this framework the 2010 Global Report calls for specific action by the ILO to hasten the pace of progress towards the 2016 target. The paragraphs below summarize the key components proposed for ILO work on child labour in the period ahead.

Towards universal ratification of child labour Conventions

1. The ILO will work with member States towards promotion of universal ratification of Conventions Nos. 138 and 182, and towards implementation of the 1998 Declaration.

Promoting public policies to tackle child labour

2. The practical experience in tackling child labour developed through IPEC's field programme is invaluable and will be used to inform support to national responses to child labour, including the development of national policies and action plans. ILO constituents have emphasized the importance of quality basic education as being a central component of the response to child labour, and IPEC will continue to build linkages between efforts to tackle child labour and to promote Education for All. Increasing strategic focus will be given to other important public policy responses which can have a positive impact on child labour by addressing its root causes, in particular social protection, youth employment and efforts to promote decent work and livelihood opportunities for adult workers. Attention will also be paid to other contributing factors, including discrimination and social exclusion.

Leading the knowledge agenda

3. The ILO has a comparative advantage through its accumulated experience in data gathering, empirical and policy-oriented research, policy work and extensive practical experience obtained from its field projects and social partners. It will continue to be the knowledge leader, and will continue to produce global and regional estimates and a periodic world report on child labour, resources permitting. Inter-agency cooperation, particularly through the Understanding Children's Work project, will continue to be important in this area. IPEC will endeavour to

¹ The present document is an excerpt of the Governing Body (309th session, November 2010) document GB.309/TC/3. The Decision by the GB which endorsed this Action Plan reads as follows:

Follow-up to the ILO Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work: Technical cooperation priorities and action plans regarding abolition of child labour

The Governing Body:

- (a) re-endorsed the 2006 Global Action Plan (summarized in paragraph 11) of document GB.309/TC/3;
- (b) endorsed the 2010 Global Action Plan contained in paragraphs 21-28 of document GB.309/TC/3, taking into account the Roadmap adopted by the Hague Conference;
- (c) reconfirmed its commitment to the elimination of child labour as one of the Organization's highest priorities, and the role of the International Programme on the Elimination of Child Labour (IPEC) in supporting efforts to eliminate child labour.

(Document GB.309/16, paragraph 76.)

address existing knowledge gaps by developing methodologies to better capture some of the more neglected worst forms of child labour, and will develop impact assessment methodologies with a view to explaining the best policy responses to eliminating child labour. Particular emphasis will be given to developing and promoting knowledge in the areas of agriculture (the sector in which 60 per cent of working children can be found), forced labour, child domestic labour (an area in which a new international labour standard is expected to be adopted in 2011 and where the majority of children involved are girls) and the informal economy. The ILO will also further implement the resolution adopted by the 18th International Conference of Labour Statisticians concerning statistics on child labour.²

Regional priorities

4. The 2010 Global Report highlighted that child labour has increased in both absolute and relative terms in sub-Saharan Africa, confirming the need to continue to focus efforts on eliminating child labour in this region. IPEC will seek to mobilize donor support for new work in Africa, whilst continuing to strengthen support under existing programme activities and fine-tuning its strategic focus. Work in South Asia, the region in which the largest number of children are working, will include a focus on ratification of Conventions and necessary follow-up. Although considerable progress has been made in the Latin American region, important challenges remain, including the issue of child labour in indigenous communities which requires particular attention.

Advocacy, strategic partnerships and the worldwide movement against child labour

5. To develop and support the worldwide movement, the ILO will aim to expand its global influence through developing more effective advocacy tools, particularly through the scaling up of the World Day against Child Labour and making the ILO the international clearing house of ideas and practices related to combating child labour. The proposed regular world reports on child labour will be a key advocacy tool in the years to come. Under the ILO's public-private partnership policy, the Office will engage in discussions on multi-partner initiatives to address child labour in, amongst others: cocoa, sugar, tobacco, cotton, coffee, mining and fishing, while contributing to the creation of livelihood initiatives in these sectors for adults whose children are at risk of child labour. The Office will also continue to promote the elimination of child labour under the "One UN – Delivering as One" approach and in the context of the target dates for the Millennium Development Goals (2015) and the elimination of the worst forms of child labour (2016), in global partnerships and in South-South cooperation, and will continue to promote the mainstreaming of child labour into international policy and development frameworks and indicators.

Capacity building for workers' and employers' organizations

6. The Global Report underlines the vital role that the social partners play at all levels of the worldwide movement against child labour. Capacity building of the social partners will be an integral part of project activities developed by the Office. Particular attention will be given to the valuable role of the social partners in promoting advocacy on child labour and supporting the public policy response. Support to these organizations will also be stepped up to allow them to play more significant roles within their competencies and mandates.

² ILO: Report of the Conference, 18th International Conference of Labour Statisticians, Geneva, 24 November–5 December 2008, Resolution II concerning statistics of child labour, p. 56.

Child labour within Decent Work Country Programmes

7. Consistent with the approach called for in the ILO Declaration on Social Justice for a Fair Globalization, attention to child labour will be reflected in Decent Work Country Programmes, and efforts to strengthen programme linkages between IPEC and other ILO programmes and activities will be intensified at headquarters and in the field. The impact of the global economic crisis threatens to have a negative impact on child labour and IPEC will be well-placed to support targeted efforts against child labour in the context of recovery measures through its field presence.

Taking forward the Roadmap

8. The ILO will actively support implementation of the “Roadmap for Achieving the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour by 2016” agreed at the Hague Conference. IPEC will also collaborate with the Government of Brazil in its hosting of a follow-up global child labour conference in 2013.

Taken together, the points above provide a strategic agenda and action plan for the ILO, and in particular IPEC, in the years ahead towards 2016.

Towards a world without child labour – Mapping the road to 2016

(10–11 May 2010, The Hague, The Netherlands)

Roadmap for Achieving the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour by 2016

Preamble

- i. A new momentum is necessary if the world is to attain the goal of eliminating the worst forms of child labour by 2016 as agreed upon by the ILO tripartite constituents in the Global Action Plan.ⁱ Around the world, 215 million boys and girlsⁱⁱ are engaged in child labour.ⁱⁱⁱ One hundred and fifteen million of these children are exposed to its worst forms.^{iv} Removing these children from the worst forms and offering them a future without child labour is an urgent priority.
- ii. We, participants at the Global Child Labour Conference 2010. Towards a world without child labour – Mapping the road to 2016, representatives from governments, employers' and workers' organizations, non-governmental and other civil society organizations, regional and international organizations, have gathered in the Hague, the Netherlands, on 10 and 11 May 2010, to take stock of progress made since the adoption of the ILO Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention, 1999 (No. 182), to assess remaining obstacles and to agree on measures to accelerate progress towards the elimination of the worst forms of child labour by 2016, while affirming the overarching goal of the effective abolition of child labour, which is reflected in the ILO Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work (1998) and ILO Convention, 1973 (No. 138) to which ILO Convention, 1999 (No. 182) is complementary, and
- iii. Considering that action to eliminate the worst forms of child labour is most effective and sustainable when it is situated within action to eliminate all child labour, including through area-based and sector-based programmes, and
- iv. Acknowledging that the effective abolition of child labour is a moral necessity and that all ILO members have an obligation to respect, promote and realize that principle; that it can yield high social and economic returns, and that eradicating child labour - and providing the alternative of education and training, and decent work for adults and children of working age - contributes to households breaking out of the cycle of poverty, and helps countries advance human development, and
- v. Recognizing that the international community has identified child labour as a significant impediment to the realization of children's rights, national development^v and the attainment of the Millennium Development Goals, particularly those related to poverty alleviation, education, gender equality and HIV/AIDS, and recognizing furthermore that the ILO Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention, 1999 (No. 182) and its accompanying Recommendation (No. 190) reflect a global consensus that immediate and effective measures are required to secure the prohibition and elimination of the worst forms of child labour as a matter of urgency, and
- vi. Noting that over the past decade action against the worst forms of child labour has been implemented in all parts of the world and that this has led to significant progress; that this demonstrates that the fight against child labour can be won with sound policy choices and substantial national and international resource commitments, and when capitalizing on new opportunities, such as the G-20 summits and the Global Jobs Pact, and
- vii. Acknowledging the available data concerning the incidence of child labour, by sector, with the highest incidence of child labour in agriculture (60%), and 26 % in services,^{vi} while recognizing the need for more data collection covering hard-to-reach children including in domestic work, slavery, sexual exploitation and illicit activities, and

- viii. Agreeing that with six years remaining until the target date of 2016 for the elimination of the worst forms of child labour, it is imperative to substantially upscale and accelerate action, given the overall pace of progress and that the global economic crisis puts recent progress at risk, and
- ix. Recognizing further that now, more than ever, political leadership is needed to achieve the elimination of the worst forms of child labour, and that governments in partnership with all other relevant actors need to act swiftly and with determination in this endeavour, particularly in the informal economy where most child labour occurs, and
- x. Acknowledging that international cooperation and/or assistance among Members for the prohibition and effective elimination of the worst forms of child labour should complement national efforts and may, as appropriate, be developed and implemented in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations,
- xi. Declare that we will substantially increase efforts to ensure that we achieve the goal of eliminating the worst forms of child labour by 2016 and we agree to this Roadmap, and we urge the international community to substantially increase its efforts in this regard.

Part I – Principles and Action

Guiding principles

1. Governments have the primary responsibility for enforcing the right to education for all children, and the elimination of the worst forms of child labour. The social partners and other civil society organizations, and international organizations have important roles in promoting and supporting such action.
2. Government responsibility should be assumed at the highest level and with the best interests of children in mind, taking into consideration the views of children and their families, and should include due attention to the most vulnerable children and the conditions that create their vulnerability. In doing so governments should assess the impact of relevant policies on the worst forms of child labour, taking into account gender and age, put in place preventive and time-bound measures and make adequate financial resources available to fight the worst forms of child labour, including through international cooperation.^{vii}
3. In a globalized economy, government responsibility includes developing and strengthening policies and programmes, in consultation with social partners, that address child labour issues, in particular the worst forms, in international supply chains.
4. Government actions to combat child trafficking, prostitution, production of pornography and the trafficking of drugs should where necessary include international cooperation.
5. Governments should consider ways to address the potential vulnerability of children to, in particular, the worst forms of child labour, in the context of migratory flows.
6. All actors should work towards strengthening the world wide movement against child labour, including by using traditional and new media. They should – according to their expertise – raise awareness and sensitize the public on the rights of children to be free from child labour, the value of education and training, and the longer term costs of child labour, in terms of health, employment opportunities, persistent inequalities and intergenerational poverty.
7. There is no single policy that by itself will end the worst forms of child labour. However, evidence has shown that targeted action that simultaneously addresses the implementation and enforcement of legislation, the provision and accessibility of public services (including free, quality compulsory education, training and non-discriminatory social protection services), and the functioning of labour markets, yields high returns in the fight against child labour, including its worst forms. The elimination of child labour should therefore be integrated in broader policy frameworks at national and sub-national levels, and policy coordination should be strengthened through appropriate inter-ministerial mechanisms.

Action by governments

8. Government actions should be guided by the following policy priorities:

8.1 National legislation and enforcement:

- 8.1.1 Working towards implementation of the ILO Declaration on the Fundamental Principles and Rights at work (1998) and, for states party to the ILO Conventions addressing child labour, full implementation of those conventions, and for states that are not party to those conventions, consideration of ratifications, as well as the optional protocols to the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child;^{viii}
- 8.1.2 Adopting and enforcing national legislation against child labour and its worst forms in particular, ensuring that these rights are respected for all children without exception, and ensuring that information on relevant legislation is widely disseminated;
- 8.1.3 Developing and implementing cross-sectoral national action plans to eliminate the worst forms of child labour as a priority, in consultation with social partners and taking into consideration the views of other parties as appropriate. Providing adequate resources to achieve the goals so established;
- 8.1.4 Periodically reviewing and updating national lists of hazardous work prohibited for children in consultation with social partners;
- 8.1.5 Ensuring access to justice by children and their families, including by ensuring that justice systems and processes are child friendly;
- 8.1.6 Enforcing appropriate sanctions against perpetrators of the worst forms of child labour, strengthening the inspection and monitoring machinery that bring these to light, and documenting court cases. Particular emphasis should be given to strengthening labour inspection, including on occupational health and safety.

8.2 Education and training:

- 8.2.1 Extending and improving access to free, compulsory, quality education for all children, with a particular focus on girls, and ensuring that all children under the minimum age for employment are in full-time education, and including where appropriate and consistent with relevant international labour standards, in vocational or technical education;
- 8.2.2 Adopting strategies to remove costs that represent a barrier to education, in particular fees and school supplies;
- 8.2.3 Adopting strategies to (i) encourage and monitor school enrolment, attendance, retention and reintegration, through, for instance, scholarship and school meal programs to help poor families reduce the costs of education,^{ix} and (ii) create a child-friendly learning environment, in which children are protected from abuse, violence and discrimination;
- 8.2.4 Developing concrete plans and mechanisms to meet the needs of children engaged in the worst forms of child labour as per ILO Convention No. 182 and support their transition into appropriate education or vocational training.

8.3 Social protection:

- 8.3.1 Implementing strategies, policies and programmes that offer access to and delivery of social and health services to vulnerable and socially excluded households, hard-to-reach children, and children with special needs, where possible including a basic social protection floor;

- 8.3.2 Fighting discrimination that contributes to child labour;
 - 8.3.3 Supporting families' capacity to protect their children by working towards a system of social protection through, for instance, cash transfer schemes; public works; access to credit, insurance and savings schemes; strengthening and implementing national protection frameworks to protect children from exploitation;
 - 8.3.4 Assisting victims of the worst forms of child labour to prevent their return to child labour.
- 8.4 Labour market policy:
- 8.4.1 Taking action to foster a well-functioning labour market, as well as access to vocational training for adults and young people of working age that corresponds with the current and future needs of the labour market so as to facilitate the school to work transition;
 - 8.4.2 Supporting employment creation and promoting decent and productive work for adults and young people of working age, that is consistent with the fundamental principles and rights at work;^x
 - 8.4.3 Working towards regulating and formalizing the informal economy where most instances of the worst forms of child labour occur, including through the strengthening of state labour inspection and enforcement systems and capacities;
 - 8.4.4 Creating an environment, together with social partners, that aims to combat child labour in supply chains.

Action by the social partners

9. Social partners should be guided by the following priority actions:
- 9.1 Taking immediate and effective measures within their own competence for the prohibition and elimination of the worst forms of child labour as a matter of urgency including through policies and programmes that address child labour;^{xi}
 - 9.2 Advocating for the effective abolition of child labour, where appropriate in collaboration with other civil society organizations;
 - 9.3 Advocating for effective training and education policies and for extended access to free, compulsory, quality education up to the minimum age for admission to employment;
 - 9.4 Improving outreach (by workers' organizations) into the economic sectors in which child labour is prevalent, and implementing initiatives in particular sectors;
 - 9.5 Working to ensure that effective systems are in place to combat child labour in supply chains, recognising the usefulness of social dialogue in the design and implementation of such systems. Publicising, promoting and learning from successful initiatives to combat child labour and in particular its worst forms, with the support, where appropriate, of governments and international organizations.

Action by non-governmental organizations and other civil society actors

10. NGOs and other civil society actors should be guided by the following priority actions:
- 10.1 Generating support in society for the effective abolition of child labour, including by contributing to knowledge on the extent and impact of child labour, by developing demonstration projects for up-scaling by governments, and by calling upon governments to implement education for all and effective policies against child labour, especially its worst forms;

- 10.2 Calling upon governments to respect children's rights and ensure that appropriate services are offered to vulnerable children to protect them from child labour, especially its worst forms, and assist those that have been withdrawn from child labour;
- 10.3 Supporting multi-stakeholder initiatives in sectors of the economy that involve the worst forms of child labour;
- 10.4 Contributing to monitoring the incidence of child labour and related issues, including through appropriate research and capacity building;
- 10.5 Engaging children and their families in an inclusive and participatory manner so that policy makers can consider their views when developing policies.

Action by international and regional organizations

11. International and regional organizations should be guided by the following priority actions:

- 11.1 Providing technical and where appropriate financial assistance to support governments' efforts to mainstream policies regarding the worst forms of child labour into their development strategies at national and local levels, particularly those directed at poverty reduction, health and education, child and social protection, gender equality and human development;
- 11.2 Promoting an effective partnership across the United Nations and the multilateral system to address child labour, mainstreaming child labour into international policy and development frameworks and indicators and intensifying cooperation regarding child labour, including through the global task force on education and child labour and other existing partnerships,^{xii} while recognizing the lead role of the ILO in combating child labour;
- 11.3 Mobilizing additional financing for the effective abolition of child labour, especially in its worst forms;
- 11.4 Developing further methodologies and capacity to conduct research on child labour, particularly its worst forms, undertaking systematic impact assessments and evaluations of child labour interventions, including the differential outcomes for girls and boys and different age groups, and improving documentation and knowledge sharing;
- 11.5 Strengthening efforts (together with governments and other relevant partners) to address hazardous work by children particularly in sectors and occupations where child labour is most prevalent;
- 11.6 Promoting and supporting the continued development of the worldwide movement against child labour, including by supporting the work of the social partners as well as NGOs and others.

Part II – Promotion of the Roadmap and monitoring of progress

- 12. The promotion of action and monitoring of progress in eliminating the worst forms of child labour is to be undertaken consistent with, and complementary to the ILO supervisory system and reporting mechanisms, and to enhance progress towards the 2016 goal. Recommended actions include:
 - 12.1 The establishment, by governments, of (i) effective national follow-up mechanisms additional to their obligations under ILO Convention No. 182, to review progress to end the worst forms of child labour domestically – such as annual tri-partite meetings - and (ii) national initiatives to monitor^{xiii} progress in eliminating the worst forms of child labour, taking into account national action plans and other time-bound measures, and capitalizing on information available through reporting under existing obligations such as international conventions' supervisory mechanisms^{xiv} and national Millennium Development Goal monitoring systems;

- 12.2 The founding of a “Global Leaders against Child Labour Initiative”, composed of eminent persons in order to promote the Roadmap globally and progress towards the 2016 goal;
- 12.3 The publication of an annual World Child Labour Report by the “Global Leaders against Child Labour Initiative”, in collaboration with the Understanding Children’s Work Programme^{xv} reviewing overall progress towards meeting the 2016 goal and analysing trends and developments. The report is to be published for World Day against Child Labour.

The participants express their gratitude to the government of the Netherlands for hosting this conference pursuant to the Global Action Plan, and acknowledge the intention of the government of the Netherlands to bring this document to the attention of the International Labour Conference and the Review Conference on the Implementation of the UN Millennium Development Goals.

Roadmap adopted by acclamation at the Global Child Labour Conference 2010.
The Hague, 11 May 2010.

ⁱ This goal has been agreed upon by the ILO constituency of 183 member States and workers’ and employers’ organizations. It was endorsed by the ILO Governing Body in November 2006.

ⁱⁱ This figure is taken from the 2010 ILO Global Report on child labour.

ⁱⁱⁱ Child labour is work done by a child who is under the minimum age specified for that kind of work, as defined by national legislation, guided by the ILO Declaration on the Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work (1998) and ILO Convention Nos. 138 and 182.

^{iv} The worst forms of child labour are defined in the Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention, 1999 (No. 182) as:

- (a) all forms of slavery or practices similar to slavery, such as the sale and trafficking of children, debt bondage and serfdom and forced or compulsory labour, including forced or compulsory recruitment of children for use in armed conflict;
- (b) the use, procuring or offering of a child for prostitution, for the production of pornography or pornographic performances;
- (c) the use, procuring or offering of a child for illicit activities, in particular for the production and trafficking of drugs as defined in the relevant international treaties;
- (d) work which, by its nature or the circumstances in which it is carried out, is likely to harm the health, safety or morals of children.

Recommendation 190, accompanying Convention No. 182, provides further guidance.

^v Including in the following instruments, documents and events:

- ILO Minimum Age Convention, No. 138 (1973);
- UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (1989);
- Copenhagen Declaration on Social Development (1995);
- International Child Labour Conferences in Amsterdam and Oslo (both 1997);
- ILO Declaration on the Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work (1998);
- ILO Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention, 1999 (No. 182);
- World Fit for Children (2002), outcome document of the 2002 UNGASS on Children;
